First Lady Offers Congrats to CA Vet

*Ms. Bea Cohen
 Los Angeles, California*

Dear Bea:

I am pleased to congratulate you on your 102nd birthday. I wish you all the best on the momentous occasion.

As you celebrate such a remarkable milestone, I hope you take joy and pride in all that you have accomplished. Our service members, veterans, and their families are some of the strongest and most talented individuals in our country, and each day I am inspired by stories like yours. Your contributions over the years have helped strengthen the fabric of our Nation, and your life represents an important piece of the American story.

Again, congratulations and thank you for your service to our country.

*Sincerely,
 Michelle Obama*

In March, Ms. Cohen was honored by CalVet, the California Legislature, and Governor Jerry Brown for her long history of service and sacrifice to our country. She also received the "Local Heroes Award" from KCET Television during Women's History Month.

Bea continues to serve veterans in many ways. She recently began calling Bingo games at the West LA Veterans Home and will soon begin working with the Home's Garden Club. On June 2, 2012, Bea will help represent the West LA Veterans Home at the Los Angeles Air Force Base Retiree Expo. Having volunteered in the Family Services Department of the Base for many years and still knowing lots of people there, Bea should draw quite an audience!

Bea is currently working to establish free upholstery classes for homeless veterans in the Los Angeles area. She already has an experienced teacher—a Vietnam veteran—and some supplies. As an upholsterer herself for over 50 years, Bea will help veterans learn the trade. All she needs for her class now is space. If your LA-area business or organization has a room or space you can offer for a very good cause, please contact Jeanne Bonfilio at the West LA Veterans Home, jeanne.bonfilio@calvet.ca.gov.

Armed Forces Day History

On May 19, 2012, the nation will celebrate Armed Forces Day—a day citizens come together to honor and thank military members for their patriotic service and sacrifice in support of our country.

The effort to create a single-day holiday was led by President Harry S. Truman and announced on August 31, 1949, to replace separate Army, Navy and Air Force Days. The single-day celebration stemmed from the unification of the Armed Forces under one department—the Department of Defense. Each of the military leagues and orders was asked to drop sponsorship of its specific service day in order to celebrate the newly announced Armed Forces Day. The Army, Navy and Air Force leagues adopted the newly formed day. The Marine Corps League declined to drop support for Marine Corps Day but supports Armed Forces Day, too.

The theme of the first Armed Forces Day was “Teamed for Defense.” It was chosen as a means of expressing the unification of all the military forces under a single department of the government. Although this was the theme for the day, there were several other purposes for holding Armed Forces Day. It was a type of “educational program for civilians,” one in which there would be an increased awareness of the Armed Forces. It was designed to expand public understanding of what type of job is performed and the role of the military in civilian life. It was a day for the military to show “state-of-the-art” equipment to the civilian population they were protecting. And it was a day to honor and acknowledge the people of the Armed Forces of the United States.

The first Armed Forces Day was celebrated by parades, open houses, receptions, and air shows. In Washington D.C., 10,000 troops of all branches of the military, cadets, and veterans marched past the President and his party. In Berlin, 1,000 U.S. troops paraded for the German citizens at Templehof Airfield. In New York City, an estimated 33,000 participants initiated Armed Forces Day “under an air cover of 250 military planes of all types.” In the harbors across the country were the famed mothballed “battlewagons” of World War II, the Missouri, the New Jersey, the North Carolina, and the Iowa, all open for public inspection. Precision flying teams dominated the skies as tracking radar were exhibited on the ground. All across the country, the American people joined together to honor the Armed Forces.

SECRETARY'S MESSAGE...

Freedom Barber Shop

In a parking lot on the West Los Angeles campus of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (USDVA), sits a 28-foot, 1956 trailer with a large American flag painted on its side. For many years, the trailer was used as a movie (The Way We Were & Planet of the Apes) and television (Bonanza) make-up and hair studio. Years later, it was donated by veteran Tony Bravo who offers free haircuts to veterans at the USDVA in what is now known as "Freedom Barber Shop."

The Freedom Barber Shop is similar to one you'd find in a small town—where people often drop by just to chat. It's has been called the invisible center of the USDVA. The clients of Freedom Barber Shop are a far cry from the rich and famous Tony served decades ago in his succession of salons on LA's San Vicente Boulevard. Back in the '70s, Tony could charge $100 for a cut and style. Now, he might get paid with a couple pieces of fruit or a ball made from rubber bands.

That's OK with Tony—even though he provides far more than haircuts. His shop offers a safe place where hurting veterans can vent, commiserate, grieve, feel understood, enjoy companionship, laugh, and start to heal the invisible wounds of war that often include depression, post-traumatic stress, and substance use disorder.

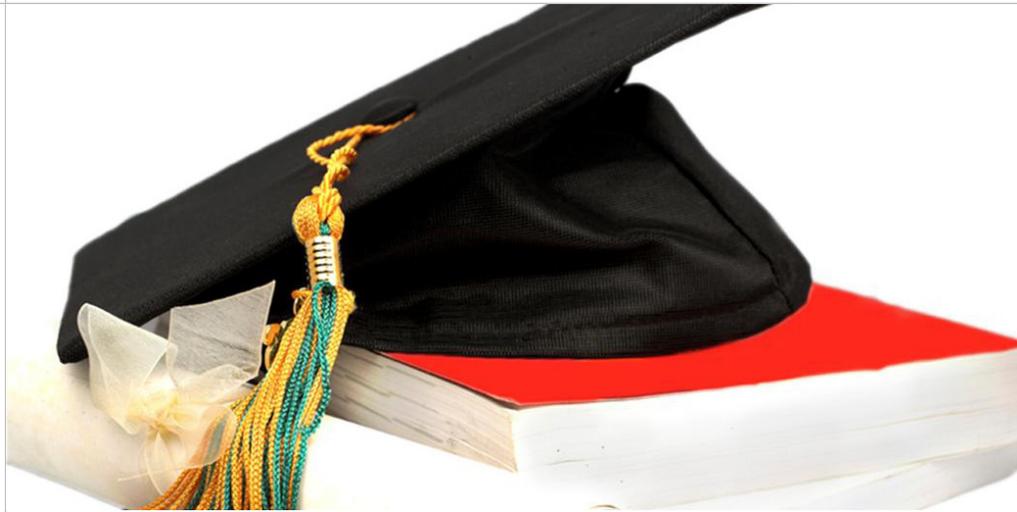

First of all, I wish to thank everyone who attended the CalVet Secretary's Conference in Sacramento on April 27, 2012. Lots of good information was exchanged between the CalVet management team and veteran community leaders from around the state. Planning for our next CalVet Secretary's Conference to be held in Southern California in late October has already begun. Expect to hear more about that event in coming months.

This month, we celebrate a couple of very meaningful events. May 19 is Armed Forces Day, a day when Americans pay tribute to the many members of our active military. The brave men and women who serve in our country's five military branches—Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force, and Coast Guard, along with those who serve in the National Guard and Reserve—exemplify duty, patriotism, and selflessness.

On Monday, May 28, we will observe Memorial Day and pay tribute to the many men and women who died while serving in the U.S. military. Many of you will spend the day enjoying the outdoors with friends and family. Others will attend parades. Still others will visit cemeteries and veterans memorials. Regardless of how you spend Memorial Day and regardless of whether you are alone or with family and friends, I ask that you participate in the National Moment of Remembrance at 3:00 p.m. As a nation united, we stop briefly to remember and honor those who died in service to the United States.

For a partial list of Memorial Day ceremonies and events in California, visit the CalVet website at www.calvet.ca.gov.

Veterans Need to Carefully Research For-Profit Schools

Over the next year or two, 40,000 men and women are expected to separate from the military and return to California. Many veterans, eager to begin using their post-9/11GI Bill education benefits, find themselves deluged by pitches from for-profit schools hoping to take advantage of those government benefits.

While for-profit institutions are often more accessible and may offer more flexible course study, it's important for veterans to understand that not all course credits transfer from one institution to another, and not all college degrees are created equal. Prospective students need to carefully research for-profit institutions and realize: if it seems too good to be true, it probably is.

CalVet oversees the California State Approving Agency for Veterans Education (CSAAVE), the state agency designated to approve and monitor for-profit institutions for the administration of the GI Bill. To assist veterans in their decision-making process, CSAAVE has developed the following Student Bill of Rights and Considerations Prior to Enrollment. CSAAVE requires schools to provide this document to students when they are considering enrollment.

Student Bill of Rights and Considerations Prior to Enrollment

- This document must be issued to veterans and eligible persons when using GI Bill benefits at a private postsecondary institution approved for the training of veterans by the California State Approving Agency. The following rights and information must be provided to veteran students:
- You have the right to investigate training alternatives. Be aware that tuition charged by institutions offering similar training programs can vary greatly. You may also seek payment of GI Bill benefits for other types of training or career objectives, including Apprenticeship/OJT and Entrepreneurships.

- You have the right to fully explore a program prior to enrolling. You may check out the school's facilities and equipment, inquire about instructors' qualifications and class sizes, observe a class, and talk to current students. You may also ask to contact recent graduates to learn about their experiences with the school.
- You have the right to check with the Better Business Bureau, or other consumer protection agency, to find out if complaints have been filed against the school. You also have the right to verify the school's standing with any accrediting association and/or licensing agency.
- You have to right to clear information about the value of the training. Are the credits transferable to other institutions you may attend in the future? Will the training satisfy requirements for employment, or is it necessary for the position you are seeking?
- You are entitled to clear data about the program's success rate. The institution will provide you with the completion and placement rates for the most recent years for which data is available. You will be given the definition of a "placement," including the length of time in the position. You will also be provided with the average starting salary.

- You are entitled to a clear statement of the total cost for completion of the program, including tuition, equipment and fees.
- You are entitled to a clear explanation, without coercion, of all financial aid options, before you sign up for any student loans.
- You are responsible for paying off a loan whether or not you complete the program. Failure to pay off a loan can lead to financial problems, including inability to get a future loan or grant for another training program, inability to get credit to buy a car or home, or garnishment of wages through the employer. You must begin repayment of the loan in accordance with the terms detailed within the financial aid documents.
- You have the right to read and understand the contract, and all other materials, before signing up.
- You are entitled to a clear explanation of the school's cancellation/ withdrawal policy and procedures, to understand how to withdraw or cancel, and be informed of any financial obligations you will incur.
- You are entitled to a clear explanation of the school's refund policy, which can vary greatly. If you withdraw from a course after the first day of class, an overpayment of [USD]VA benefits can result. It is not uncommon for schools to charge the entire tuition cost at the point when you have completed just 60 percent of the program. If an overpayment is assessed, the [USD]VA will send you a debt letter for the cost of the training you did not receive. For example, you may drop at the 60 percent point, and be asked by the [USD]VA to repay 40 percent of the cost of the tuition. A debt related to payment of the housing allowance may also be assessed. Ensure that you review the school's refund policy to understand the consequences of withdrawing before the end of the term.
- You have the right to contact the California State Approving Agency at www.csaave.ca.gov or the state consumer protection agency if you are unable to resolve a complaint with the school.

Marine Serves Veterans, Families at Riverside National Cemetery

By Jerry Rice

Every veteran deserves an honorable and dignified burial. That's part of what motivates Richard Burns to volunteer three days a week at Riverside National Cemetery, where he assists families who are there to say goodbye to loved ones.

"A lot of people really don't know what to expect at a national cemetery," said Burns, who still looks sharp in his dress blues uniform - 50 years after serving overseas with the Marine Corps as an amphibious assault vehicle crew chief. "I tell them a little about the cemetery, what's going to happen, the procedures during the service and what a military funeral is all about."

Birth Defects in Vietnam Veterans' Children

If you served in Vietnam and have children with birth defects or other problems—including learning and/or attention disorders, childhood cancers, autistic spectrum disorders, immune and/or endocrine problems—this study may interest you.

Riverside National Cemetery - one of 131 national cemeteries around the country - averages 35 services a day, and more than 212,000 veterans and their spouses are interred in Riverside.

Besides assisting families, Burns also is a member of a Memorial Honor Detail, specifically the Semper Fi No. 1 team. It's one of nearly 50 units, staffed by some 470 volunteers, who provide military honors for about 10 RNC services daily. Active duty, Reserve and Guard units cover all of the remaining services.

"Seeing a squad of uniformed veterans welcoming and honoring one of their own gives the families, I believe, a sense of well-being that their loved one is where they are supposed to be and that they will be cared for," said Dean Moline, Riverside National Cemetery director.

For Burns, his duties as the family assistance volunteer are mentally and emotionally draining, but the work, he adds, is important.

"It's a very sad time for the families," he said. "When they're crying and upset, sometimes you want to break down and cry with them. But you have to be strong so you can help them with their grief."

Burns recalled one service when a young girl asked if the cemetery would take good care of her grandfather.

"I bent down and said, 'Yes, we specialize in taking care of grandfathers because a lot of us are grandfathers.' I explained a couple more things to her, and she felt a lot more at ease. When I straightened up and looked around at the family, most of them were wiping the tears out of their eyes.

"It's always a very sad occasion, but I'm glad that I can - in some small way - make the family feel a little more comfortable with the fact that they're leaving a loved one at a place where there are a lot of veterans and that we're going to take excellent care of them."

Veteran's Resource Center Now Reality at SDSU

By Stuart Hughes, SDSU

After years of lobbying at both the state and university level, SDSU veterans will finally have a place on campus to call their own.

Director of TRIO and Multicultural Affairs C.D. Douglas said there will be a space located in the Multicultural office to serve the roughly 300 veteran students at SDSU. There, veterans can access information and resources ranging from tutoring to benefits and build a sense of community. Douglas said the Veteran's Resource Center is part of a University effort to increase veteran outreach.

"We want to make sure veterans get the service they need," he said. "We're trying to create a space where veterans feel comfortable and know they can always go for help."

Reaching veterans has proved to be a challenge on campus because veterans are self-identified and have not had a dedicated space. Previously, veterans had an office to process GI Bill paperwork and used the disability services office when they needed help with disability-related issues. Douglas said the new resource center would be better equipped to serve the veteran community on campus.

The SDSU Armed Forces Association estimates there may be as many as 500 to 700 veterans and others on campus that qualify for veteran benefits under the GI bill. This would make people receiving veteran's benefits one of the largest student groups on campus.

Danny McLaughlin, who serves as the president of the AFA, said having a dedicated space for such a large community is vital. McLaughlin said having no real space for veterans on campus hurts efforts to build community. "A lot of service members come to school and feel alone," he said. "We want veterans to know that we're here for them and that they have a space they can go to be with people like them who they have a shared background with."

Douglas said the veteran's resource position has already been advertised; he hopes to have it filled by June. The position will be shared with disability services and dedicate 75 percent of its time to veterans affairs. One of the position's major responsibilities is planning a special orientation session for veterans either returning to school or just beginning.

"Not having a veteran's orientation has been one of our main complaints from the veteran community in the past few years. They have a different set of needs than the average freshman, and this is something we need to do to help ease their transition into college life," Douglas said.

The veteran's resource center is a start, but in the future, Douglas hopes to provide more services for veterans, including a counselor trained to deal specifically with post-traumatic stress disorder and a full-time financial aid administrator specializing in the GI bill.

Give an Hour Founder Honored

In April, TIME Magazine announced its 2012 list of the 100 Most Influential People in the World. According to the magazine, TIME recognizes activism, innovation and achievement by people “whose influence is both lasting and ... laudable.”

Included on this year’s list is Barbara Van Dahlen, founder and president of Give an Hour (GAH)—a nonprofit organization founded in 2005 to develop national networks of volunteers capable of responding to both acute and chronic conditions that arise in our society.

Currently, GAH is dedicated to meeting the mental health needs of the troops and families affected by the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan. The organization provides counseling to individuals, couples and families, the children and adolescents. GAH offers treatment for anxiety, depression, substance abuse, post-traumatic stress disorder, traumatic brain injuries, sexual health and intimacy concerns, and loss and grieving.

In addition, GAH service providers are working to reduce the stigma associated with mental health by participating in and leading education, training, and outreach efforts in schools and communities and around military bases.

Since 2005, Barbara’s work has brought together over 6,100 providers, who have donated nearly $5 million worth of services. GAH was also chosen by The White House as a Joining Forces Community Challenge winner.

<< DEFECTS

Birth Defect Research for Children is collecting data to examine the effects of service in Vietnam and potential exposure to Agent Orange on the children of Vietnam veterans.

Participation in this project involves completing an online questionnaire which can be found at www.birthdefects.org/registry. The questionnaire will ask about your child or children’s disabilities; health and family history of both parents; exposures during pregnancy; occupational exposures; and your service in Vietnam.

Collected data will be used for a study of the pattern of birth defects and disabilities that have been most frequently reported in the children of Vietnam veterans. All data are confidential and your permission would be requested before any researcher would attempt to contact you.

For more information about the study or questionnaire, contact, (407) 895-0802.

Review of Discharge from Military Service

By Joe Wright, Kings County Veterans Service Officer

Each of the military services maintains a discharge review board with authority to change, correct or modify discharges or dismissals not issued by a sentence of a general court-martial. The board has no authority to address medical discharges.

The veteran or, if the veteran is deceased or incompetent, the surviving spouse, next of kin or legal representative, may apply for a review of discharge by writing to the military department concerned, using DD Form 293, "Application for the Review of Discharge from the Armed Forces of the United States." This form may be obtained from the Internet.

However, if the discharge was more than 15 years ago, a veteran must petition the appropriate Service's Board for Correction of Military Records using DD Form 149, "Application for Correction of Military Records Under the Provisions of Title 10, U.S. Code, Section 1552." A discharge review is conducted by a review of an applicant's record and, if requested, by a hearing before the board.

Discharges awarded as a result of a continuous period of unauthorized absence in excess of 180 days make persons ineligible for United States Department of Veterans Affairs (USDVA) benefits regardless of action taken by discharge review boards, unless the USDVA determines there were compelling circumstances for the absence. Boards for the Correction of Military Records also may consider such cases.

Veterans with disabilities incurred or aggravated during active duty may qualify for medical or related benefits regardless of separation and characterization of service. Veterans separated administratively under other than honorable conditions may request that their discharge be reviewed for possible recharacterization, provided they file their appeal within 15 years of the date of separation.

Your local county veterans service office (CVSO) can provide forms and directions on how request a review. Questions regarding the review of a discharge should be addressed to the appropriate discharge review board at the address listed on DD Form 293.

Contact your local CVSO if you would like to receive periodic veteran's information by email. There are many state and federal benefits and programs available to veterans and their dependents. To find out if you are eligible for any of these benefits, visit or call your local CVSO. You can find your local CVSO by going to www.cacvso.org and clicking on the "Contact us" button.

In an effort to reduce veteran unemployment, the VOW to Hire Heroes Act of 2011 was passed and signed into law last November. Included in this new law is the Veterans Retraining Assistance Program (VRAP) for unemployed 35- to 60- year-old veterans, which will begin on July 1, 2012. Personal Plea on Behalf of The Pathway Home

On April 21, more than 2,100 riders participated in the Wine Valley Cycle for Sight/Rotary Ride for Veterans in Napa. Proceeds from the ride will benefit Enchanted Hills Camp for the Blind and Visually Impaired.

The ride also benefits The Pathway Home, a residential recovery program specifically created for, and dedicated to serve, “New Warriors”—those of any age who have served our Nation’s Global War on Terror. The Pathway Home provides a comprehensive program of treatment and support so that its residents can continue to recover from the stressors of war or combat or other traumatic military-related stressors.

The day before the ride, a very moving personal plea on behalf of The Pathway Home was e-mailed to participants from Steve Orndorf, Past President of the Napa Noon Rotary Club. Excerpts from that e-mail follow.

As you participate in our event tomorrow, we hope you will all reflect on a crisis of epic proportions that we now face, and we ask that you strongly consider making an additional donation or pledge to help us keep the doors open at The Pathway Home....

We can guarantee that if it hasn’t already, PTSD and TBI will touch your life in some way.... No one who has known a veteran or visited Pathway is surprised by the April 15th New York Times article concerning the frequency with which our young veterans are taking their own lives....

For every serviceman and woman killed in combat, 25 will take their own lives via suicide. An American soldier dies in combat every day and a half, yet suicides by service men and women take place every 80 minutes. There are 6,500 such suicide deaths per year, more than all the American lives lost in Iraq and Afghanistan since the wars began.

One in five service men and women suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder and traumatic brain injury. The Veterans Administration programs are inadequate and ineffective, and while their heart is in the right place, they lack the true commitment to addressing the many problems stemming from PTSD and TBI.

Pathway receives no governmental support, despite being considered by many as the best post-traumatic stress disorder program in the country, and it is run far more cost-effectively than government-run programs. Three quarters of the men who have come through this program have either tried to commit suicide or have contemplated doing so.

If you agree that this situation needs immediate attention, there are many ways you can help. Write to your state and federal representatives. Encourage them to not only support this program but demand that they establish others like it around the country. Locally, you can help by attending the Rotary Club of Napa’s Cycle 4 Sight event this Saturday, April 21st. Most of the proceeds will go to the Pathway Home program....

If you do not bicycle, just come to the festival. You will be able to meet some of the Pathway Home vets while you’re there. Bring your friends and family!

If you missed the ride and festival, you can still respond to Mr. Orndorf’s heartfelt plea. Visit www.thepathwayhome.org to find the many other ways you can support The Pathway Home.

CA Mexican American Veterans Memorial Moves Forward

By John Ochoa

History is on the move at Historic State Capitol Park in Sacramento. In 2012, California will celebrate an historic groundbreaking of a state memorial honoring Latino Veterans. In 2013, the memorial will be officially rededicated. It is believed that the memorial is the first permanent commemoration honoring Latino veterans at any of our nation's 50 state capitols.

Public funds cannot be used to support the project. The memorial can only be funded through private contributions. As of March 2012, nearly $400,000 had been raised in support of the memorial. In the months ahead, Californians will continue coming together to raise those additional funds needed to keep our promise to honor the men and women who served in our Armed Forces to secure and guarantee our freedom.

On December 21, 2010, then CalVet Secretary Roger Brautigan officially informed the Department of Finance and the Memorial's state partners that a final design had been approved, following a rigorous process of selecting an architect and scheduling meetings and forums to receive public input on design concepts. Secretary Peter J. Gravett strongly supports the memorial and urges all Californians to continue their support for the memorial.

The successful processing of the environmental impact review through the Department of General Services marks another project milestone. The Committee is pleased to report that the architectural and engineering services and environmental impact review costs have been paid for.

Secretary Gravett and Memorial Committee Chairman Robert Ruiz are coordinating efforts to assist the Committee in moving forward with the selection of a contractor to beautify, enhance and restore the Memorial.
